Budget, Inspection Concerns Key at GHI Annual Meeting

by Bay Woods

After much discussion at its annual meeting May 19, the membership of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. voted down a proposed by-law change on financial reporting. Members vigorously countered the proposed final sentence that a “copy of the summary budget shall be made available to members upon request.” The vote against was almost unanimous.

Current language requires that a “copy of the financial statements shall be sent to every member with the notice of the annual meeting and a copy of the summary budget will be made available upon request.”

Yard Lines

The Architecture and Planning Committee reported that it is determined to “ensure that every yard, once and for all, has an accurate yard line.” A problem for more than 50 years, the issue arises from sometimes unclear distinctions between public and private on communal land that is built, gardened or landscaped. Often, it was noted, a member maintains the land better than GHI. Four meetings are planned to address this issue.

Elections

Unopposed slates of candidates for the Board of Directors and Audit Committee were presented to the membership and elected.

The five board members are George P. Moore, Jr., of 3-A Crescent, Sylvia J. Lewis of 2-C Gardenway, Dorothy Lauber of 9-M Ridge, Donald R. Hudson of 3-F Ridge and Gail A. Alexanderwicz of 3-N Research. All are for two years except Lewis, for one year. The fifth opening on the board was due to the resignation of a board member whose term had a year to run.

Elected to the Audit Committee were Dianne Wilkerson of 60-F Crescent, Janice P. Reyes of 9-C Hillside and Hopi Auerbach of 14-X Ridge.

Lewis, who has served on the board for four years, said that she “tries to balance the rights of the individual with the good of the community.” Such a balancing act characterized much of the meeting.

Interior Inspections

The tension between the rights of the individual and the good of the community reached its highest pitch in discussion of ongoing interior inspections of electrical components and bathrooms. Alexanderwicz cited safety as the board’s primary motive for the inspections.

Some members expressed concern for the civil liberties of co-op members. Sue Ready, who previously resigned from the board of directors over this issue, said she opposed bathroom inspections because members should be responsible for items such as cracked tile.

The board, she said, did not have the right to enter a member’s home in order to force that member to make repairs. She did not oppose electrical inspections because she felt GHI is responsible for electrical wiring.

Member Rodney Roberts also offered emotional opposition to the inspections. He also stressed the rights of the individual in co-operative living. Other members were more concerned about damage that a neighbor’s mold may cause to their houses or to their health. Audit committee member Auerbach stressed that the co-op would provide three weeks’ notice before any such inspection.

Forty-nine homes have been inspected so far. Alexanderwicz said that “so far there has been positive feedback.” Board President Julia Eichhorst agreed, however, that it would be more convenient if members could volunteer to have inspections coincide with any major renovations they are undertaking.

Yard Inspections

The Yard Beautification Program met even more opposition. No one present spoke in favor of recent inspections performed by Condominium Ventures, Inc. Many members spoke against the recent inspections, in which only 12 percent of GHI members escaped citation. Eichhorst said that all but one member of the board were cited.

Many senior citizens complained of having a difficult time

Greenbelt Day Chautauqua All about News Review

by Sandra Lange

The Greenbelt Museum will sponsor a Chautauqua, a panel discussion about the rich history of the Greenbelt News Review, on Sunday, June 6 at 4 p.m. in the Greenbelt Community Center Multipurpose Room. This free event will be part of the Greenbelt Day weekend celebration. The Greenbelt Museum has invited past and present editors and staff members to talk about the history, influence and future of the News Review.

The News Review has been called the glue that binds Greenbelters together to promote common understanding. It began in 1937 when some of the first Greenbelt residents met to form a journalism club.

After writing, editing and proofreading the paper each week, they typed stencils, ran mimeographed copies and assembled and stapled the paper. Today’s computers have streamlined the production process but the writing, editing and proofreading are still performed by a volunteer staff.

Over the years the News Review has evolved to reflect Greenbelt’s social and political life.

It reports on major community events, maintaining its independence from the city government and all other organizations. The Police Blotter and Our Neighbors are regular feature columns.

In the 1960s, a developer in the city sued the paper for libel, asking for $2 million. The suit went all the way to the Supreme Court. In a landmark freedom-of-the-press decision, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the News

Del. Justin Ross Opposes Funding for Beltway Ramps

by Virginia Beauchamp

In a May 14 letter to Maryland Department of Transportation Secretary Robert Flanagan, State Delegate Justin Ross describes as a potential “boondoggle” the state’s commitment of $20 million toward construction of Beltway ramps to support the proposed Greenbelt Station development. Referring to the City of Greenbelt’s lawsuit now pending in the Maryland Court of Special Appeals, Ross, who represents Greenbelt in the state legislature, opposed funding of the ramps construction project until the lawsuit is resolved. The city has challenged the approval process for the concept plan and the preliminary plan of subdivision.

Ross’ letter notes that County Bill 47, passed in 2000 to support construction of the multi-use residential-commercial development on the Greenbelt Metro station site and the adjacent A.H. Smith property, requires the signing of a commitment from an upscale department store as “a prerequisite” for the necessary zoning. Despite rumors that Macy’s might commit to the project, Ross expresses his “suspicions” that they will not.

“If the commercial component of this project does not move forward,” the letter concludes, the state “will be underwriting a private development to bring approximately 2,000 residential units to Prince George’s County.” Such an outcome would result in “a monumental misappropriation of government time, money and resources,” his letter concludes.

The city agrees that public funds should not be used for a private development.

Folk Music to Rock Center On Greenbelt Day Weekend

by Eileen Peterson

From the mountain folk music of RainCrow, the a capella traditional songs of Melissa Sites, to the urban new folk music of The Rusticators and the southern blues of Doug Way, next weekend will be a two-day celebration of Greenbelt Day in Roosevelt Center: 18 music acts and a crafts fair of regional artists. (See full schedule in boxed ad on page 8).

Saturday, June 5, the 2nd Annual Crafts Fair begins at 10 a.m. and runs to 4 p.m., with sales and demonstrations in such diverse arts as stained glass, pottery, bead jewelry, hand-made soap and greeting cards.

There will be free face-painting for children; the demonstrations will include work on a potter's wheel, the making of traditional American Indian crafts, and Paul Downs showing how he creates sculptures from natural material found on walks in the woods.

Greenbelt Writers Group will sponsor a "spontaneous writing" session from 2 to 3 p.m. Saturday, June 5 inside the New Deal Café. Anyone is welcome – just bring a pen. Also inside, the exhibit of underwater photography by Karan Temple True, sponsored by Friends of New Deal Café Arts (FONDCA) continues on view through June.

Continuous Music

The Fourth Annual Folk and Blues Festival from noon to 11 p.m. on Saturday, June 5 and noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday, June 6 is the strongest lineup ever, remarks Richard McMullin, concert organizer and coordinator for all the New Deal Café music.

The Rusticators, from San Francisco, bring west coast urban folk music to next week's Fourth Annual Folk and Blues Festival in Roosevelt Center.

The Rusticators, from San Francisco, are touring the east with such musical stories as "Spare Rib," "Walking in Loneliness" and "Sweet Sundowner."

Tree brings folk rock with guitar, "rootsy" vocals, accordion and harmonica.

The Martha Capone Band brings hard-driving blues/rock and R&B. Guest singer Josh Basson has sung onstage with Roger Daltrey and the Funk Brothers.

Acme Blues Company, from northern Virginia, is a four-member, high-energy electric blues band in the Stevie Ray Vaughn, Eric Clapton, Muddy Waters tradition.

Ian Morrison brings traditional southern blues melodies as does Doug Way, a frequent New Deal Café performer. Radiomime

Greenbelt Leads the Way

The Town of Hampton, Conn., passed a resolution concerning civil liberties this week. What is the connection to Greenbelt? My 81-year-old parents, Carolyn and Thomas Gaines, heard how our city council had passed a measure expressing our city's concerns regarding the "Patriot Act" and decided to try and follow suit in their New England town.

The ruling body there is the Town Hall Meeting, a semi-annual occurrence. My parents placed the "Resolution Concerning Civil Liberties" on the agenda for the May 18 gathering and although they had prepared with research, quotes from prominent people, the names of other communities that had taken such actions, etc., none of that was necessary. People spontaneously got up from their seats and said why they supported such a move.

The resolution passed on a paper ballot with 86 percent of the vote, about the same percentage as passed the town and school budgets. In case anyone should think the Bill of Rights issue is a partisan concern, there are more registered Republicans than Democrats in Hampton.

Now you know Greenbelt's leadership and influence extends all the way to New England.

Major Fund Drive to Repair Organ

Members of the Greenbelt Community Church voted unanimously on April 25 to undertake the restoration of the All Souls Memorial Organ, which has been in use for church services since its dedication in 1957. According to the assessment, leather components have become brittle with age and require replacement. The project will cost $21,500.

Paying for the restoration has two components. Its initial cost has been borrowed from church reserves and replacement costs will be raised through individual donations, benefit concerts and the recent Mother's Day Tea. So far $13,393 has been raised this way, leaving a balance of $8,107.

As another fund-raising venture, artist and church member John Norden has produced an abstract image of the church's stained glass window, which is now offered for sale. The prints are personally signed, matted and framed under glass. All proceeds will be dedicated to what has been called the "Joyful Noise" Organ Restoration Fund.

The organ is described as a "magnificent instrument." A modern-day replacement is estimated at $100,000.

STOP, LOOK and LISTEN to the beauty of the world around you.

"Verily, in the creation of the heavens and the earth, and in the alternation of night and day, and the ships which sail through the sea with that which is of use to mankind, and the water (rain) which God sends down from the sky and makes the earth alive therewith after its death, and the living creatures of all kinds that He has scattered therein, and in the veering of winds and clouds which are held between the sky and the earth, are indeed signs for people of understanding."

– The Holy Qur'an, 2:164

meeting the one-week deadline for lawn mowing. Others who said they met the deadline complained that GHI sent out letters saying that GHI would mow the lawn and charge the member $50 an hour.

Other members shared Jeff Morisette’s contention that the inspections miss the point. Bill Phelan added that many of the best yards are cited while the least attractive yards could get by with mowing their lawn only once a year and pass inspection.

It was claimed that Condominium Ventures, Inc. is accustomed to inspecting condominiums and does not understand the uniqueness and fierce independence of Greenbelters.

Despite the vigorous expression of disapproval over this year’s inspections, the membership voted almost unanimously in favor of keeping a Yard Beautification Program.

The disagreements of the night ended on a lighter note. When it was suggested that the raffle begin after the meeting had been recessed – so that voting could start – the crowd mounted a spirited opposition. Three certificates of $200, $100 and $50 were awarded toward co-op fees as a result of the raffle. Also given were 12 $10 gift certificates to the Co-op Supermarket and the New Deal Café.

There was much cheering and mirth. No one asked to inspect the raffle system. In the interest of full disclosure, the reporter’s wife won a gift certificate to the New Deal Café.

Several information displays were set up around the room, together with a table full of free non-invasive plants given away by the Woodlands Committee. Each member was issued a voting card and asked to fill out a questionnaire for the Architecture and Environment Committee.

is Jaqui McMillan’s new urban/funky blues group. Another regular here is Mike Elosh, with original roots-based folk.

Names Beckon

Some names are familiar, others entice: Kitchen Gorilla, Jack Couldn’t Make It, Johnny and the Stringrays, Butch Murray and the Brothers.

Varied musical experiences are spread out over the almost 18 hours on both days. Last year, many visitors brought their own chairs and came both days, commented McMullin. The schedule will help one pick the timing of trips to the town’s center.

This festival is produced by a coalition of community arts groups, including FONDCA, Greenbelt Association for the Visual Arts (GAVA), Greenbelt Access Television (GATE), Greenbelt Writers’ Club, Greenbelt Arts Center (GAC) and Friends of the Old Greenbelt Theatre.

OPEN LETTER to Subscribers and Friends of

GREENBELT.COM

Some of you may be surprised to learn that Greenbelt Internet Access Cooperative (GIAC) is not an Internet service provider (ISP). GIAC is, rather, a group of community volunteers, organized as a not-for-profit Maryland cooperative, whose mission is to help others learn about and access the Internet.

Since its inception in 1996, GIAC's pursuit of that mission has included monthly free Internet and computer classes at the Library or Community Center, sponsorship of a Community Website (GREENBELT.COM) that offers free calendar and directory listings for residents and local organizations as well as a free online photo and art gallery, and, most recently, investigating the possibility of supporting base wireless Internet services for the community at large. Along the way, GIAC principals and members have had a lot of fun marching in the Labor Day parade, conducting cybercafés, awarding door prizes to attendees of local events, selling GREENBELT.COM polo shirts, posting flyers, and many other activities, with the overall goal of recruiting new members of the cooperative. The main idea from the beginning was to help each other figure out this wonderful new resource called the Internet and World Wide Web and to have fun doing it.

But perhaps the most visible aspect of GIAC activities has been the purchase, packaging, and resale of Internet services to its members who need them (not all do) under the aegis of GREENBELT.COM. On behalf of our subscribers, and sometimes with great pain, we have had to learn how to effectively run a service business, i.e., negotiate the purchase and support of services, do proper record-keeping and accounting, pay taxes, advertise, develop a reputation for financial integrity, fix our mistakes, create and maintain technical documentation, cope with chronic manpower shortages, and fulfill a host of other demands, somehow managing to do all of these things over the years with only the volunteer support of a tiny but dedicated handful of people.

The rationale for running this business and providing these services has always been to augment the larger mission of helping people get connected to the Internet and become able to exploit it for their own benefit and enjoyment. GIAC has endeared itself to many members who are fearful of the technology by going into hundreds of homes and offices (some of them many times) to help people get started and to deal with subsequent upgrades, provider transitions, and other problems.

The business part of the overall effort, however, has turned out to be both the most demanding and the least satisfying, primarily for two reasons. Much like you, we naively thought we could just buy services from commercial providers, resell those services to our members, and then go about our main mission of teaching people and having fun. Instead, GIAC principals as a group have spent nearly all their time and effort over the years dealing with ISP negotiations, ISP problems, and unkept ISP promises.

From time to time it has become necessary for GIAC to relocate its services from one provider to another. Because of the great variety of services and business arrangements that are offered, computers and operating environments that must be supported, and the ever-evolving technology, changing providers at any particular point in time is an extremely complex undertaking. In its eight-year history, for business and/or technical reasons, GIAC has moved its services four times. Each of these efforts has been a lot of work for the people who had to figure out how to do it as they went along, usually under some time constraint or other duress, and each has been fraught with many risks not fully understood or appreciated by members of the cooperative who were not involved except as "customers" or bystanders. It's not a job for the uninformed or the faint of heart.

The most recent such move started last week (once again, under duress, when the current ISP for no particular reason stopped supporting our subscribers even while accepting our monthly payments for services and support). Despite a hastily concocted but reasonably sound transition plan on the part of GIAC, an unfortunate confluence of errors by two of the four service providers involved resulted in unstable service and apparently some lost e-mail over the weekend. While lost or delayed e-mail is certainly an inconvenience to everyone, let us not lose our perspective or forget to look where we are standing when we criticize the efforts of others. In any case, these problems were not caused by GIAC and were different only in scale and frequency from similar problems that have been reported intermittently by our users for months. When did you ever move your entire household without breaking a dish or two? And how is that broken dish different from the one you broke a few weeks earlier when you weren't moving?

It was the judgment and decision of the folks at GIAC who do the actual work that current and future subscribers would be better off if GIAC relocated its services now, and in the process unbundled those services so they could be bought and sold separately to better serve the needs of our subscribers as the technical and business environments evolve. Actions by the GIAC Board over the next few weeks are expected to repackage services and restate rates into more flexible, à la carte, and possibly cheaper offerings. Similar changes already in place allow subscribers, for example, to upgrade to one of the broadband services if they like but still retain the cachet of a GREENBELT.COM e-mail and/or website address.

The second big reason GIAC principals have suffered much anguish over the years has been the unreasonable expectations and inappropriate attitudes evidenced by many members (and some principals). The cooperative's only obligations to its members are to provide the services that are paid for, on a month-to-month basis, and to responsibly handle the money involved, as prescribed by good business ethics and by Maryland state law. GIAC members who choose to help conduct the meetings and classes, run the business, and assist other members as may be needed are volunteers with no obligation to teach anyone how to operate a computer; to install, repair, or upgrade software, computers, or other hardware; or to tolerate any level of discourtesy or disrespect in reward for their efforts. A surprising number of past volunteers have totally lost their enthusiasm after being ill-treated by the people they were trying to help.

GREENBELT.COM service subscribers must understand that GIAC has no network servers, communications equipment, place of business, or paid employees. Other people, who are presumably paid by their employers to do their jobs, provide the services that GIAC resells to its members. A GIAC volunteer who tries to help you on the telephone or at your home has no greater business or service obligation to you than you do to him or her. All GIAC memberships are equal. GIAC volunteers and their services on your behalf, even if you are not personally aware of them, are never "unreliable" or deserving of criticism—everything done by the cooperative takes time away from someone's job or personal life as a favor to you. Be kind. Be courteous. Be grateful. Above all, remain calm. If you expect to make performance demands on the person doing the work, then you should contract a professional technician or consultant and expect to pay for the services and information provided. You will be hard-pressed to find another ISP (even one that charges you the highest subscription rates) that will repeatedly send someone to your home or office to help you at no extra charge.

The only exceptions to the characterization above regarding the obligations of volunteer members are for those who choose to accept election or appointment to one of the principal offices or administrative roles of the cooperative. Those GIAC positions have specific responsibilities and duties, as prescribed by the Articles of Incorporation, Bylaws, and subsequent policy decisions of the Board of Directors. All levels of volunteer help to the cooperative are genuinely appreciated, but no person who is unprepared to fulfill all the responsibilities and duties of the position should accept or pretend to occupy one of the principal offices or roles (i.e., wear the hat). Doing so only unfairly shifts part of the burden of that role onto someone else, inevitably leading to friction and bad feelings.

With that idea firmly in mind, please consider attending the upcoming GIAC 8th Annual Meeting at 6:30pm on Tuesday, June 1, at the Greenbelt Community Center and volunteering to GET INVOLVED WITH GIAC. Many of the current principals are near burnout from long and dedicated service—NEW IDEAS AND NEW ENERGY ARE NEEDED. What can you do to help? Anything you want ... you don't have to be a propeller-head or have any other particular skills to make a significant contribution by pursuing your own projects or interests, or just by helping take the load off someone else.

Beltway Plaza Mall, May 20, 4:01 a.m., two men broke out the glass front door of the Greenbelt Liquor Store, took two bottles of liquor and fled the area on foot. They are described as two black males, each wearing a black T-shirt and blue jeans.

Vehicle Crimes
The following five vehicles were stolen: a white 1996 Dodge Caravan, Virginia tags JDX3197, May 14, from Beltway Plaza Mall; a dark blue 1991 Toyota Camry 4-door, Maryland tags YTP170, May 15, from Beltway Plaza Mall; a black 1991 Chevrolet 4-door, Maryland tags 286BDL, May 16, from the 7400 block Greenway Center Drive; a 1994 Honda Accord 4-door, May 16, from the 5800 block Cherrywood Lane, recovered by the Prince George's County Police prior to it having been reported as stolen, no arrests; and a gold 2002 Dodge Stratus 4-door, Maryland tags 22G039, May 20, from the 400 block Ridge Road.

Eight vehicles were recovered, four by Greenbelt Police with no arrests and four by other police departments with arrests made in two of the recoveries.

Kudos to Squad Two For Stellar Service

Greenbelt Police Squad Two has been awarded a Departmental Unit Citation for the outstanding performance of duty. Lieutenant Thomas W. Kemp recommended that the squad be given the citation for the combined effort put forth during the month of March.
During that time the squad made 13 arrests (including four involving handguns), 20 adult traffic arrests, 10 juvenile arrests, 10 arrests of people wanted in other jurisdictions and obtained five arrest warrants through follow-up investigation.
This level and caliber of performance is not just above average but outstanding, according to Kemp.

Middle Schoolers Complete Training

Over 220 Greenbelt Middle School students recently completed an extensive gang resistance training program conducted by Master Police Officer Marty Parker of the Greenbelt Police Department. Classroom ceremonies on June 1 and 2 will recognize those students who have successfully completed the program. Each will receive a T-shirt and a certificate of achievement.
This instruction is referred to as the G.R.E.A.T. (Gang Resistance Education and Training) Program. It was developed through a combined effort of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) and the Phoenix Police Department as part of ATF's Project Outreach.
The program is designed to help students become responsible members of their communities by setting goals for themselves, resisting pressures, learning how to resolve conflicts and understanding how gangs negatively impact the quality of their lives. G.R.E.A.T. is a nine-week program that gives students a new philosophical outlook concerning gang activity and the tools needed to resist gang pressure.

The program is intended to complement the life skills education provided by schools by addressing these skills from a different perspective. It is used in conjunction with the Drug Abuse Resistance Education (D.A.R.E.) Program offered to many of Greenbelt's elementary students.

Volunteer Groups Request Financial Aid from City

by Al Geiger

Each year the city budgets specify amounts of financial assistance to various groups and organizations active in Greenbelt. Groups that receive assistance are also expected to raise funds on their own, however, to help support their activities.

These various groups met with the Greenbelt City Council on Wednesday, May 5 to request funds for fiscal year 2005 and to relate their fund-raising efforts to council.

Mayor Judith Davis informed each group that if they are not already doing so, they must have a state sales tax and use license and collect sales taxes on anything they sell. Failure to do so could make clubs and their officers liable for late fees and penalties, she said. Being a nonprofit organization exempts it from paying sales tax on items it purchases but does not exempt it from collecting sales tax on items that it sells.

All applications for funds from these groups have been previously reviewed by the Recreation Department staff, the Arts Advisory Board or the Parks and Recreations Advisory Board as appropriate.

The Greenbelt Golden Age Club's activities include weekly meetings with speakers and other educational, social and cultural activities, as well as travel. The group is requesting $5,100 to be used for travel to "distant" destinations, not for day trips. Last year because it had a surplus on travel costs the group did not accept the city contribution.

The group does not expect a surplus in 2005, however, and is reinstating its request for $5,100.

Its fund raisers include 50-50 drawings and a "Chinese" auction. There are 245 members in the Golden Age Club.

Concert Band

The Greenbelt Concert Band, founded in 1943, is requesting $4,600 for fiscal year 2005. The band is an adult musical organization with a mission to provide musical entertainment free of charge to the citizens of Greenbelt, Prince George's County and surrounding areas. Only the conductor receives a stipend, $3,600 per year. An additional $1,000 is needed for equipment and supplies.

While only 10 percent of the band members are Greenbelt residents, the city gets much recognition and publicity through the band's activities.

The organization also owns 47 file cabinets full of music packets from all parts of the world. The collection includes over 4,000 titles, many out of print, and some from the 1880s and 1890s. The collection represents a real treasure known to the music world throughout the United States and Canada which often requests copies.

Sports Teams

Senior Softball is requesting $1,000 to be used for uniforms and equipment. While only 25 percent of the participants are Greenbelt residents, the team represents Greenbelt in a wide area of Maryland. It plays a 42-game schedule in the Baltimore Beltway League.

The team plays its home games at Watkins Regional Park, which is free for their use. Members contribute funds to pay umpires and to cover other expenses.

Greenbelt Little League is requesting $7,000 to be used for uniforms and equipment for 12 teams. The remainder of its $26,900 budget comes from membership dues, corporate support and concessions.

The Greenbelt Aquatic Boosters Swim Team is requesting $7,600 or about 30 percent of its $25,660 budget. It raises the remainder of its funds from membership dues, individual donations and concessions. Approximately 57 percent of participants are Greenbelt residents. Nonresidents must have a nonresident pool pass.

Specialty Groups

The Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Committee is not requesting funds but receives much in-kind city participation from the City of Greenbelt Public Works, Police and Recreation Departments.

Friends of New Deal Café Arts (FONDCA) is requesting $1,200 from the city to support its free outdoor concert series and New Year's Eve celebration. Its mission is to provide financial and other support for the performing, visual and literary arts at the New Deal Café and the Roosevelt Center.

The Greenbelt Boys & Girls Club, Inc. requested $15,000 from the city toward its proposed budget of $38,085. The club provides spring and fall soccer, softball, baseball, football, basketball and cheerleading to youth between the ages of 5 to 16. Membership is 99 percent Greenbelt residents. Scholarships are available for members unable to pay the required dues.

The Greenbelt Youth Double Dutch League, otherwise known as the Greenbelt City Stars, is requesting $4,000 from the city toward its budget of $21,000. It has competed in the American Double Dutch League world championship. The seventh-grade team placed first and presently holds the title of 2002 and 2003 world champions. The fourth-grade team placed third overall.

The Greenbelt Arts Center (GAC) is requesting $25,000 from the city, up from $22,500 received last year. Its proposed budget is $81,500 including the salary of one part-time employee. It has income from sales, admissions, tuition, dues, grants and other activities.

The Babe Ruth League has requested $9,000 from the city out of a budget of $19,150. It pays $9,800 for supplies and equipment and $9,300 in franchise fees. It provides a spring/summer and fall baseball and softball program for kids 11 to 18 years old.

The total amount requested by contribution groups is $49,200 for fiscal year 2005.
